Transition Process

Periodically, teams need to focus on planning and/or evaluation activities to guide accomplishment of team goals. Processes include setting goals and specifications and formulating strategies to achieve them.

a. What are our performance goals? (e.g. grade, innovation, quantity of work)

We are targeting a S grade through milestone based approach execution and strengths driven task allocation. We'll implement regular checkpoints with clearly defined criteria and quality benchmarks for each phase. Our ultimate objective extends beyond grades to understand effective communication and leadership practices in real world settings. We'll explore topics including active listening, conflict resolution, professional networking, and adaptive communication styles across different workplace scenarios.

b. What are our people goals? (e.g. enjoying teamwork, making new friends, becoming potential professional work colleagues)

We aim to internalize communication strategies and leadership principles learned from industry professionals, integrating them into both our academic and future career path. Each interaction will serve as a practical lesson in conflict navigation, and relationship building. We'll cultivate adaptive communication styles, understanding how to tailor our expression across different professional contexts and hierarchies. Our team commits to embracing constructive feedback from interview participants, viewing each critique as an opportunity to refine our interpersonal competencies.

c. What are our learning goals? What knowledge and/or skill development will we focus on together?

Collaboration is central to this project. We commit to valuing each perspective through structured discussions where every opinion is heard before decisions are made. We'll share communication insights with peers seeking professional guidance. Most importantly, we'll develop interpersonal skills and aim to share the cmmunication and leadership insightswe gather, this knowledge sharing extends our project impact beyond academic assessment.

Action Process

Action process serves the purpose of assigning responsibilities, managing tasks and timelines, and providing a plan of action.

a. How will we organize the leadership for this project?

Leadership will be organized by managing the timelines and workflows, thereby adhering to the guidelines, assisting with tools and resources while maintaining the consistent communication with the team members.

b. What roles would the other members play?

Roles are distributed as per skills and managebleness among team members. Lakshika being Team Lead/Head, Jahnavi in Creative Head, Sahil Sharma contributing as Communication Head, Sailaja and Sahil Raj are Research Heads

c. How are decisions made?

Decisions are collectively discussed and refined by the team members for the different tasks prior to finalizing, to ensure alignment with the project guidelines and attached resources/references.

d. How will we work together at different stages for the team task?

By deconstructing the project into clear and manageable tasks thereby distributed fairly in consideration of the skills and expertise level of the team members. As a final step, peer reviewing and refinement is done collaboratively to ensure high quality

e. What communication mode will we use and when?

Team collaboration for major tasks such as discussion, plan of action and distribution of tasks are sheduled via gmeets (flexibly managed) and updates of the work before submission are managed iin group chat.

Action Process

f. When and where will we hold our meetings?

Team meetings are conducted via Google Meet, with timings mutually discussed and agreed upon based on everyone's availability for that particular day.

g. How will we share the workload(quantity, quality, time? What will we do when a team member is doing more(or less) work than others? What happens if someone is legitimately unable to complete their role in an assignment?

Tasks are distributed based on team members' strengths and availability to achieve balanced workloads. Regular check ins identify any disparities, which are then addressed through open dialogue and redistribution. If a member faces legitimate obstacles preventing task completion, the team rallies to provide coverage and maintain progress.

h. How will we help team members (sharing knowledge and resources)?

Open communication channels will be maintained for quick questions, with team members sharing professional contacts and resources, reviewing each other's interview techniques, and collectively troubleshooting challenges while ensuring equal access to learning materials.

i. When and how will we review progress on goals? What is our process for setting and meeting deadlines?

Goal progress is monitored through structured weekly check-in meetings. Setting and meeting deadlines follows a systematic approach: defining tasks explicitly, assigning clear responsibilities, and establishing achievable timelines. Shared digital tools enable real-time progress tracking, with flexibility built in to adjust plans and maintain project trajectory.

Interpersonal Process

The purpose of the interpersonal process is to enhance understanding, connection between individuals through effective communication, empathy, and mutual respect. .

a. How we will manage conflict if it becomes personal and not task related?

If conflict becomes personal and not task-related, we will address it through respectful communication. The focus will be on understanding each other's perspectives and separating personal feelings from professional roles. If needed, team leader will help facilitate resolution and rebuild trust.

b. How will we celebrate successes & commiserate goals we do not meet?

We will celebrate successes by acknowledging team efforts through shout-outs, or team gatherings. For goals we don’t meet, we’ll reflect together, identify lessons learned, and support each other to improve. This approach encourages continuous growth.

c. What will we do to make experience of working together a positive one?

To make the experience of working together positive, we will keep open communication, mutual respect. We'll support each other, celebrate achievements, and create a collaborative environment where everyone feels valued and heard. Regular feedback and team-building activities will also strengthen our connection.

Acknowledgement

The Team Leader's review, feedback, and appraisal of each team member in each milestone will be final. As a project member, I will acknowledge this and sign the contract accordingly.
